If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact so many people claim that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention the Pendleton Daily East Oregonian. Large and medium size bottle for sale at all drug stores.

NAVAL TRICKS FOOLED HUNS

U-BOATS COULD NOT UNRAVEL SECRETS

False Angles Painted, Boats Appeared Moving Backward.

With the lifting of the censorship curtain, camouflage on the high seas, as it was practiced throughout the war, comes for the first time into its own, says an illustrated article in the Popular Mechanics magazine. Mystery, as deep and gray as sea fog, has hidden the tricks and systems of the navy camoufleurs. This was necessary because Germany, herself, did not know those marine arts. Her submarines could never establish contact strong enough to unravel the secrets of the ships that were made by paint and brush to disappear. To take strange forms, to sail backward, and to perform the weirdest tricks of legend.

Painted Backwards. For instance, it may now be told that scores of ships evaded torpedoes because, to the periscope eye, they were apparently steaming in one direction, while actually progressing in the opposite way. This uncanny evolution was due wholly to brush and paint, and a few boards. It was accomplished by making the steamer's bow look like her stern, and her stern like her bow. At the rear, a steamer curves in below the deck line down to the water line. At her bow, she drops in a straight, sharp line from nose to the waves. So the camoufleurs nailed a scaffolding, sharp and straight, over her stern, painted upon it white waves breaking as from the slicing impact of a prow, and then proceeding to the real bow, painted upon either side a heavy curve line that swung inward below the deck line. Sea color, paint and broken lines of darker hues made the lower half of the bow line invisible.

Smokestacks Reversed. The smokestacks, which always shant aft, were with paint and boards made to slant forward; that is, the real line of the stacks were painted out and false angles substituted. Smoke consumers prevented the tell-tale clouds from giving the whole reversal policy away to the U-boats.

WHY DOUGHBOY WEPT

COELENZ, Jan. 2. (By Mail.) There were tears in the eyes of the soldier. Such tears are rare, so when the Y. M. C. A. canteen worker, a young woman, saw the doughboy weeping her sympathy went out to him. She wondered what tragedy had broken down a strong man's natural self-control. He wasn't making a sound, just dropping silent tears. Could it be because the war had ended without his seeing fighting? "Hazyour buddy—died?" timidly suggested the Y. M. C. A. worker. She had seen more than one man shed tears for his buddy who wouldn't have done it for himself. "Naw," said the Yank rather crossly. "He's all right. He'll be along yowling for his supper in a minute." He lifted his handkerchief to his eyes again. "Maybe you're just plain homesick?" asked the Y. M. C. A. woman, after a moment's hesitation. "She hated to leave him in such trouble." "No, I ain't," he contradicted. "Well, if there's anything I can do—" "There's nothing anyone can do for me, lady," he said. "I'm in trouble, all right, but I guess I'll get over it. You see, we're havin' onions for supper tonight, and I'm doin' 'em."

Burglar, Recently Slain, Identified; Disposing of Loot

PORTLAND, Jan. 29.—The burglar killed by Inspector Tackaberry January 21 was identified Tuesday in telegrams to Chief of Police Johnson, as Paul Weigen, alias Edward H. Wiggins, an escaped prisoner from the Missouri state prison and robber of at least one home in Minneapolis. Police have no longer any doubt that the burglar came here to dispose of his loot, which, from monograms on the confiscated goods at police headquarters, came from at least three homes in that city.

J. F. Walker, chief of police in Minneapolis telegraphed that women's clothing and Oriental rugs had been stolen from seven homes in that city. He forwarded the names of E. J. Stroud and E. J. Conner of Minneapolis, as persons who had suffered from Weigen's operations. Mr. Stroud's name was found in a coat seized by police in the burglar's home at 117 Lombard street. The monogram "E. J. C." was found on linen discovered in the same apartments, making it probable that some of the loot was from Mr. Couper's home.

According to telegrams received yesterday, the burglar served two terms in the Kansas penitentiary and two in the Missouri penitentiary. He escaped from the Missouri prison at Jefferson City, November 7, 1915.
